

Transition for Local Self-Reliance of "Care, Food, Energy" The "Welfare Mall", A Step of Japan's 0.1 % city

Satoru Mizuguchi
Journalist, Japan
msatoru99@gmail.com

Higashi-Ohmi, 110,000 population, 50km east of Kyoto, forest 60%, 20% farming, 10% industrial "Welfare Mall", -elder care facilities, slow food restaurant and energy facilities, run by community business.

Under challenges -- rising aging rate, stagnant economy, massive youth unemployment, climate change, food system crisis

solar panel on rooftop, funded by citizens

Workplace for the Old, the Mentally Handicapped and the Young slow-food restaurant and café firewood workshop

day center for the old, elder care planning center, home- visit services center transition team

After three year's discussion among transition team, composed by key person in the field of elder care, hospital, public health, environment, the vision and process plan of new healthcare model has been emerged.

"Mantra" party

Tool of transition: Change agent "Mantra" map, each box represent key person

Change agents include local government, citizen, private sector, medical doctor, researcher, monk, teacher, care manger, etc, everybody participate as individual